

Tanner Knorr – Communications Manager

Tanner manages EWI's new business, develops the newsletter, and continues to build presence for the company via PR, social media, and events. Tanner holds a Bachelor's in Archaeology and a Master's in Administrative Studies, concentrating in Economic Development and Tourism Management from Boston University. He has been a Teaching Assistant at Harvard Extension.

He also owns a business called Off Season Adventures that strives for sustainable tourism practices in Tanzania. The business pushes safaris and cultural excursions during the off season travel to promote economic development, carbon offsets all flight, vehicle, and accommodation emissions, and makes tangible community investments in the country. Much of the inspiration for the business comes from Megan Epler Wood's book Sustainable Tourism on a Finite Planet.
