

Vicente Moles – Senior Consultant

Vicente J. Moles is an international consultant with more than 20 years of experience in international development programs and tourism. He advises several multilateral development institutions and the International Sustainable Tourism Initiative (ISTI), Department of Environmental Health at the Harvard T.H. Chan School of Public Health.

Mr. Molés has worked for the Valencian Government, European Commission in Brussels, Spanish Agency for International Cooperation and Development (AECID) in Bolivia, UNWTO Themis Foundation as the Director, and at the Inter-American Development Bank (IDB) in Brazil. His experience in the tourism sector covers issues related to global strategic alliances, strategic planning, sustainable tourism, learning and management of development programs and projects within public and international institutions.

He received a Doctorate in Industrial Engineering from the Polytechnic University of Valencia and a Master's degree in Hotel and Tourism Management from the University of Valencia. He is currently attending the graduate program on Sustainability at the Harvard Extension School.